GATHERED UP.

Some men achieve boss-ship; some have boss-ship thrust upon them; others buy it.

Sloth, like rust, consumes faster than labor wears, while the key often used is always bright.

"Do I get a prize if I subscribe?" "You do, indeed," answered the solicitor. "You get our paper."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

He that gives good advice builds with one hand; he that gives good counsel and example, builds with both; but he that gives good admonition and bad example, builds with one hand and pulls down with the other.

Dyer—What do you call your machine, an automobile or a car? "I don't know," he called it either when it runs. When it doesn't, I call it a car.

Apprentice.
"Parlon me," began the new acquaintance, "but are you the Mr. Cadley North who wrote that magazine article last month for us?"
"Yes," interrupted North, "but of course you'll understand that I don't make a business of that sort of thing."
"Of course. I know that. I read the article."

Talk Prosperity.
A large manufacturing concern in Chicago instructed all its traveling salesmen to become missionaries for the cause of prosperity. They were told to talk down pessimism and business timidity wherever they go and to do all they can to inspire confidence. "Make the question of soliciting orders secondary entirely to an effort on your part to restore confidence wherever it seems to have been lost."

Victims of Heredity.
It has been shown that criminal tendencies depend on heredity and social and physiological circumstances. The most important of these is heredity. Just as no amount of ambition will enable a man to write a Shakespearean drama if he have not the talent, so it is preposterous to expect a child of vicious parents, brought up among vicious surroundings, that moral tone which would characterize the finest type of humankind.—Strand Magazine.

Don't Be Careless.
We are a careless people, careless in politics, careless in economics, careless with the public and the private purse, careless in local administration, careless of our backyards, careless about all else, and every day, of human life. We parade just now with banners and shout among our moral awakenings. But the characteristic feature of it is that we are content that somebody for whom we shall awaken us rather than that we shall rescue ourselves.

Time She Begins.
It was on a Sixth Avenue surface car. A woman sat with her little daughter, who to all appearances was seven or eight years old. "The conductor came for the fares, and the woman gave him a five cent piece."
"Is the little girl with you, madam?" asked the conductor.
"Yes," answered the woman.
"Her fare," said the man.
"But I never have paid for her," began the woman.
"And does that prove that you're never going to?" asked the conductor, taking the fare reluctantly tendered.—New York Press.

Advertising His Wares.
A preacher in a college town up the state recently decided that the best way to increase his attendance at his church was to advertise. So he took up a part of the paper in town with a small display got up not unlike a theatre advertisement.
"How long since you have been to church?" was the first line type interrogation. "Better go to-morrow," was the next line. "Try the First"—concluded the advertisement, mentioning the name of a denomination that is not essential in the context.

The Listener.
Our Own Daniel.
"My Mother, will it be the winter, and thereby the bleak wind is blowing? What shall we do? You shiver, and baby is sick. How scanty!
"Our door? See, scarce is the coal, while without it is ice-bound and snowing. Since Father died for the railroad, and we were left to wait."
Alone, unloved, an aged man replied and wept.
"And know this bitter truth, how poor indeed is he Who, fed in body, hath in spirit starved."
The God-imparted treasures of eternity. To such as these, yes, many thousand mourning ones.
O Daniel, man of God, with comfort thou hast come.
Through years thine own and five, hast nestled with hunger's glooms."
And he taught, said, "Alas! souls to seek their heavenly home."
Like him of old, the people's friend, thy wisdom ken
Smote the idle fraud, and helped all willing worth to rise.
As Daniel, Prince, thyself a prince of prayer art seen
In halls of Government. Oh, late ascend the skies!"
—Albert H. Plumb.

Shoe Industry.
Readers of signs of the times are satisfied that they see indications of steady improvement in the boot and shoe business. The improvement is by no means large, but it is gradual and suggests promise. Spring orders are becoming

ON THE FARM.

South Weymouth Grange No. 270, Patrons of Husbandry, is a new organization, but, like the mighty Rhine, "It sprang forth with vigor and boldness" and although a little over four weeks old has a large and enthusiastic membership which has mapped out a year's work of unusual interest and importance in the development of the things the name signifies. There are twenty-four meetings and subjects arranged for the year and every one is suggestive of good.

The farmer who has first-class farm implements is justified in thinking to lead them. They are never so good after they have been borrowed.

Pigs are sensitive to cold and the late litters should be well protected, as also the early spring pigs. If milk is not plenty, make porridge and add to it. Raw meal is not suitable for young pigs.

Don't fail to have an abundance of drinking water in clean vessels constantly before the fowls in a shady place, as the egg is composed of over 70 per cent water.

Frequent tillage is necessary to success in the garden. Shallow cultivation often repeated is one of the most efficient means known for counteracting the effects of drought.

The health and strength of the farm team should be guarded at all times. It will never pay to wear out a good horse just to get a certain amount of work done.

An old fruit grower says that the pick is the best tool he ever used around apple trees when the ground has become too hard. He sinks the pick 8 or 10 inches into the soil and merely pricks the dirt loose, without disturbing the roots at all.

Home supplies will taste just as good if they are produced on the farm. To tell the truth, you will have a better appetite for them than if you had paid several men besides the grower a profit for letting you buy them.

There is just one way that a man can honestly water milk, and that is through the cow at the watering trough. That is a thing that we cannot neglect, because milk is largely water, and the cows must have plenty of it, and that which is good and pure, too.

A famous veterinary surgeon declares that grass beats all drugs in creation as a cure for sick horses and mules. Horses should have a few quarts of cut grass daily, from spring until fall. The prevalent notion that it is harmful is without foundation. Grass is to horses what fresh vegetables and fruit are to the human family.

Apple and peach borer.—For the destruction of these two insects no sure remedy has been found except the knife. It is probable that covering the trunk of the tree near the ground with the link or tar used to catch carter worms, moths, or wrapping around the trunk bands of tarred paper, would assist in keeping them away.

Care should be used in selecting the proper soil for each vegetable. The long varieties of beets, carrots and parsnips should never be grown in heavy soil that packs easily. There are kinds more suitable, such as those that grow partly out of the ground, but sandy or open light soils are best for the long varieties.

A Missouri farmer has returned to the uses of his farm. He says he has used them cheaper and better than horses and mules. In addition to having one for general farm work, he has trained a bull to run a treadmill that pumps water, churns butter and does all of that kind of work. This animal beats a windmill or gasoline engine "all to pieces" and the work keeps his temper sweet and prevents him from doing damage with his horns. Other farmers are watching the experiment, and "horseless farms" may soon be all the rage.—Globe Democrat.

The day of haphazard farming by plenty of brown and no brains has gone by. No two farms are exactly alike. Every farm is a separate and distinct problem to be worked out by itself. Much depends upon the man. If he is a thinker, he is able to succeed. If his story does not work, "nothing doing up there," he may make a bare living, may get along some way, but the chances favor a run-down farm, gradual accumulation of debt and eventually the sheriff.

A grindstone by the way, should never be left exposed to the sun. The weight of the handle will always cause one portion of the stone to remain uppermost, and from this exposure will reach a different degree of hardness from the under side, so that after a while the stone will be ground out of a circle. If the stone has to stand in the open, a flat box can easily be obtained to serve as a cover.

It takes a great deal of water for the production of orchard crops because the trees are pumping out of the soil great quantities of water all the time. Open up the soil and let the water move into it, and once in the soil maintain it there. A farmer said that he allowed the weeds to grow up and then mowed them down and that much acted in the way to do the most good. It kept the water in the soil. We know when we pass along the road or elsewhere if we kick up a stone or even the dry dirt on the roadside we find it much and kept the water from escaping.

In the men's lines there is less variety than in the shoes for women, but every effort has been made to evolve works of art for the masculine foot. There are novelties in tops, and the lasts used give variety enough in shapes. The broad toes are plenty; and the narrow toes are made with a broad wing, which insures comfort without crowding the foot, and at the same time retains that curve which is elegant to shoes.

Designers of shoes are constantly racking their brains for new and novel ideas. One of the latest is the use of "saddle ring" instead of eyelets, on men's Oxford shoes. There has been need of large and larger eyelets as laces have increased in size. The "saddle ring" pattern has three rings on each side, fastened in the same way the clasp rings are fastened on a saddle, and while giving plenty of bearing, afford a novel decoration of the shoe.—Boston Transcript.

ON THE FARM.

In the Island of Guernsey three cows are kept on an acre of land. The land is very fertile and the cows are kept tethered and fed on the soiling system.

When 47,880 women are listed in this country as farm laborers, one fails to see how they can justify claim the title of the weaker sex.

There are more than six and a half million farm families in the United States, and they produce enough food for themselves and the other 12,000,000 families who live in the cities and towns.

Are you making friends with the birds and getting them to help you keep down insect pests, or are you fighting them away? They will be your friends if you let them.

For brittle hoofs in a horse—even when so brittle that they will not hold a shoe—the following is reported as an excellent remedy. Two parts oil of tar with one part balsam of caper, mixed and applied every other night to the extreme top of hoof. One who has tried it says that in six weeks he cured completely a case as above.

The garden plot will be in condition for planting early next month, and this should be promptly done so that it will not interfere with general field work or become neglected. Should the ground be too wet and soggy for field work, there is plenty of rain and the soil, such as planting, spraying or loose bark, and examining the trees for scale pests.

The finer the soil the better the vegetables, both in quantity and quality. Work the surface soil over after every rain, and then retain all the moisture. Vegetables delight in a warm, deep, rich and mellow soil. Avoid planting where the ground is wet, whenever possible. You will get quicker returns by waiting a day or so and giving the soil better conditions.

One should be as careful in selecting eggs for hatching as in selecting parent stock. Choose medium to large eggs as a rule. Uniformly colored eggs look much better than a mixed lot, but usually get better. Some select the short, round eggs, believing these will produce a large percentage of pullets, but the shape of the eggs has nothing to do with the sex of the chick.

Calfes that can not be made or kept thrifty in dark, badly ventilated barns without sunshine and fair exercise. They need warm, dry quarters, out of the wind, and their hair should be kept clean. If the hair begins to turn the wrong way, you can make up your mind that your calf is not doing right; and, if it is a matter of quarters or sunshine, all the feed you can give will not put it in condition. Let the calves have the run of the barn, and give them plenty of dry straw for bedding, and then feed to keep them growing.

Whatever the merits of the sod match for the apple it should not be accepted as equally applicable to the peach. Here the conditions are different, says National Stockman. The tree is short lived at best, as compared with the apple. The purpose is to encourage early and heavy bearing for a brief period. Cultivation and the annual plowing under of leguminous crops will assist in this. A peach tree may live longer if in soil, but will never be as profitable. Some of the short lived varieties of the apple might be placed in the same class. On very hilly ground the sod match method may be necessary, in which case it is probably that something in place of the peach should be set.

"A great variety of washes have been used for preventing the female beetles from laying their eggs upon trees. The following is probably as effective as any that can be used without danger of injury to the bark: Dissolve one-half gallon of soft soap or five pounds of white oil soap in one-half gallon of hot water, and add one-half pint of carbolic acid. When mixed, allow time to make a warm water and enough lime to make a whitewash of about the consistency of paint. Finally, stir in one-fourth of a pound of Paris green. Apply the wash in April, before the eggs have been deposited on the trees, and again in a few weeks. All cracks and crevices must be completely covered. The work has no effect on the beetles after they have once entered the tree, but is intended to prevent the depositing of eggs, to kill newly-hatched larvae before they have entered the bark."

When mixed, allow time to make a warm water and enough lime to make a whitewash of about the consistency of paint. Finally, stir in one-fourth of a pound of Paris green. Apply the wash in April, before the eggs have been deposited on the trees, and again in a few weeks. All cracks and crevices must be completely covered. The work has no effect on the beetles after they have once entered the tree, but is intended to prevent the depositing of eggs, to kill newly-hatched larvae before they have entered the bark."

"A great variety of washes have been used for preventing the female beetles from laying their eggs upon trees. The following is probably as effective as any that can be used without danger of injury to the bark: Dissolve one-half gallon of soft soap or five pounds of white oil soap in one-half gallon of hot water, and add one-half pint of carbolic acid. ### GATHERED UP.

The finished orator is the one who knows when to stop. "Even if men are descended from the monkeys," said Miss Pepper, "have the monkeys any reason to feel proud?"

The man who is always on time has a big advantage in the struggle for success. —Chicago Record-Herald.

It is an excellent plan to have some place to go to quiet when things vex or grieve us. There are a good many hard times in this life of ours, but we can always bear them if we ask help in the right way. —Miss Alogy.

Yes; Some Times. "Would you send a man who uses profanity to Congress?" "I don't," answered Farmer Corntossel. "Of course I don't approve of the profanity; but I want him to be able to hold his own in any of them arguments that come up." —Washington Star.

Looking for a Husband. A little five-year-old miss was standing on the hotel steps gazing anxiously up the street. "Are you looking for a husband, little girl?" asked one of the guests. "Yes, sir," was the prompt reply. "For mama's husband."

The Boy's Composition. A Terra Haute (Indiana) teacher says she once told a pupil to compose a brief essay in which he should say something about all the days of the week. The lad turned in the following: "Monday, Jim Moulton and I killed a deer, and there was meat enough to last over Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday, Friday, Saturday and Sunday."

Philosophy. "After all," said the optimist, "the best of luck is only what you made it yourself." "It's all well enough for you to talk," growled the pessimist, "but I never get anything but bad luck."

The Retort Venomous. "So this is your widely advertised dollar table d'otie dinner, is it?" said the indignant waiter who had been pushed aside an entire while by the guest's master. "Why, this is the last place in the world I would recommend to friends."

Take a Walk. The walking fat is increasing instead of decreasing. Only white the snow is upon the ground is the arduous of the walkers dampened. Not only the men, but the young women also are interested, and vie with each other as to records.

By the Wing of a Swallow. "The late Francis Thompson the English poet," said a magazine editor, "had a great love of birds. He once told me a pretty story about a swallow." "On a certain day in the early autumn a swallow that nested in his garden, he fastened to its wing a piece of oiled paper inscribed with the words: "Swallow, little swallow, I wonder where you passed the winter?"

A Slap at Mother. Dinner was done, and the family was assembled in the sitting room. Mother had taken up the evening paper and was reading an account of how a highwayman had been operating in the suburbs. "Father was down on his hands and knees trying to act like a horse, while little Willy drove him around the floor."

Talked to the Wrong Man. "One day an important looking gentleman took a seat beside a quiet man in an Arkansas railway carriage and began a conversation. 'I am going up to Little Rock' he said. 'I got a pardon for a convicted thief. I am not personally acquainted with a servant, but he can't afford to refuse me.' The fellow guilty asked the man, 'of course he is. But that makes no difference. His friends have agreed to give me $500 if I get him out, and the thermometer is as low when I can't put up a good tale. Where are you traveling?' 'Going to Little Rock.' 'Do you live there?' 'Yes.' 'Perhaps you might be of some service to me. What business are you in?' 'I am the governor.' —St. Louis Republic.

Shoe Industry. At this time of year, when buyers of shoes are changing from supplies for cold weather to those better suited to the warmer seasons, a break in the current of business is to be expected. This break is the more apparent this spring because of the unfortunate condition of all business. The aftermath of the panic is offsetting all the good acquired in the days

"Dellah! You Dellah!" called Captain Drew sharply from the door of the cottage which fronted the marshes at the mouth of Squanon river.

"I've been robbed, that's what, Dellah!" he exclaimed, pointing with a long, work stained finger in the direction of the house. "Look at that!"

"You're kidding me," said the captain scornfully. "If I'd known they was going to do up my pew, I'd 'a' sent over it with a pistol!"

"I'm not kidding you," said the captain scornfully. "I'm not kidding you, neither. I'm not kidding you, neither. I'm not kidding you, neither."
